

The Environmental Education Center “Aula de Naturaleza Ermita Vieja” is situated in the National Park of Sierra Nevada, close to the village of Dílar, 18 kilometres away from Granada City. It’s a rustic modern building situated between walnut trees, close to the Río Dílar, a river with clean and fresh water the whole year and is surrounded by a forest that in autumn creates spectacular landscapes full of colour and light. It has a capacity for 70 people with dining service.

The facilities are adapted to disabled people; it has rooms for reunions and meetings, living room with fireplace and library, courtyards and common large spaces, outdoor places...The centre is equipped to develop environmental education activities with ecology workshops, astronomy, responsible consumption, renewable energies, forest vivarium and several ecological routes designed to discover the Natural Park. A pedagogical team, with more than 20 years of experience, develop the adapted plan to different educative levels and groups of adults.
